

What's it take?

To be a Lifestyle Support Worker at Assist Community Services, it takes someone with respect, and a great attitude.

At Assist Community Services, we work with people to assist them live the life they choose.

Our participants are people who live with a disability and want someone to support them with activities that may include:

- Participating in sporting activities
- Attending social events
- Joining a hobby group
- Going shopping
- Attending medical appointments
- Socialising
- Taking part in the life they want

Our Lifestyle Support Workers provide practical support to assist our participants live their best life.

People who work at Assist Community Services are people who:

- Treat others with respect
- Have a can-do attitude
- Are flexible and enjoy working in a diverse team
- Want rewarding work
- Genuinely care about people
- Are willing to learn

We are currently recruiting Lifestyle Support Workers for the following roles:

- Casual
- Part Time
- Trainees

If you think you've got what it takes to work in a fast growing team providing practical, respectful support for the people we work with, then we'd love to hear from you.
